The Doom Patrol, DC's strangest hero group — Cliff Steele aka Robotman (Brendan Fraser), Larry Trainor aka Negative Man (Matt Bomer), Rita Farr aka Elasti-Woman (April Bowlby), Jane aka Crazy Jane (Diane Guerrero) and Vic Stone aka Cyborg (Joivan Wade) — are back for a second season of Save the World. That is, if they can find a way to grow up . . . figuratively and literally. Following Mr. Nobody's defeat, the members of the doom patrol now find themselves mini-sized and stranded on Cliffs toy race car track. Here they begin to face their feelings of betrayal by Niles Caulder aka The Chief (Timothy Dalton), while confronting their own personal baggage. And as each member faces the challenge of growing beyond his own past traumatic experiences, they must come together to embrace and protect the new member of the family: Dorothy Spinner (Abigail Shapiro), the daughter of Niles, whose powers remain a mysterious but real threat to bring to the end of the world. Doom Patrol is based on characters created for DC by Arnold Drake, Bob Haney and Bruno Premiani and is produced by Berlanti Productions in association with Warner Bros. Television with Jeremy Carver, Geoff Johns, Greg Berlanti, Sarah Schechter and Chris Dingess serving as executive producers. Watch Doom Patrol on HBO Max and DC Universe. in: Episodes, Titans episodes, Season 1 Edit Share Doom Patrol is the fourth episode of the first season of Titans, and the fourth episode in total. It premiered on DC Universe on November 2, 2018. Synopsis [edit- edit source] Now aware of Rachel's power, Dick and Kory unite to find her. Escaped from the convent that sought to imprison him, Rachel trusts Gar who reveals his own powers of transformation. Seeking refuge, Gar takes Rachel home to her family - a group of unsuitable medical experiments that we will experience as The Doom Patrol (including Cliff Steele aka Robotman, Larry Trainor aka Negative Man and Rita Farr aka Elastiwoman) - in the hope of helping the girl. But what begins as a place of comfort for Rachel, soon becomes dark under the scientific curiosity of the head of the Doom Patrol Dr. Niles Caulder, whose experience in Rachel's powers threatens to unleash a darkness, and reveal a new level of evil waiting to escape. Originally, the titans and doom patrol series were intended taking place in a shared universe, however, the events of the two began to contradict each other, prompting the show runners to divide them (unlike the way the Supergirl and Black Lightning series were bent into the main arrowverse universe). On this world, Earth-9, Earth-9, replaces Vic Stone, there is no Crazy Jane and the chief is a different person of the same name. Lol Of course not. If they did, no one would enter the hero enterprise. —Robotmansrc The Doom Patrol is a team of heroes who are considered monsters and unsuitable. The chief scientist (Niles Caulder) brought together three super-powered outcasts: Robotman, Elasti-Girl and Negative Man to use their powers for the greater good. History An aging, wheelchair-savvy madman known as chief (Niles Caulder) has worked to create a team of super-powered outcasts by organizing accidents on people with successful lives. He ruined their lives by turning them into monsters in power so they had nothing to lose, influencing them to go on a suicide mission to save the world. Caulder's first plan was to recreate the Robotman as the Mystery Man from the 1940s by implanting a human brain into a robot body. It first caused a laboratory explosion destroying a colleague's body. Considering putting his brain in the robot, his plan was foiled when his colleague's brain was saved by his pet gorilla. Caulder refined his plan and chose three people: Cliff Steele, an international sportsman and daredevil whom Caulder had fatally burned by causing cliffs race car accident. Chief used his scientific genius to transfer Steele's brain into the robot's body. Rita Farr was a Hollywood starlet and Olympic swimmer until Caulder got her hands on her. During the filming of one of his films, Caulder exposes Rita to strange fumes that have allowed her to change her size at will. With her career in ruins, she now fights alongside the doom patrol like Elasti-Woman. Larry Trainor was previously a U.S. Air Force test pilot until Caulder caused the fall of The Trainor's experimental guidance system, sending Trainor into a stratospheric radiation belt. Now Trainor exists as a living mummy, forced to wear special bandages to contain the radiation that has disfigured her body. As a side effect of the incident, Trainor can become a being of pure energy by leaving his body as a black electric silhouette, a shape he calls negative man. The original patrol doom chief motivated this doom patrol (which was not aware that it caused their accidents). Bitter to be isolated from the world, they use their powers for the greater good. Career Throughout their careers, the team would face a variety of weird weird Rita married Steve Dayton.[1] and they adopted Beast Boy (Garfield Logan) as their son. [2] The chief would try to rehabilitate Madame Rouge.[3] but he failed and, as a result, pushed her further into wickedness. Robotman bemoans his existence as a tin man, and Larry harbours a secret love for Rita. General Immortus was revealed as the immediate cause of the chief's inability to walk. Death Madame Rouge embarks on an ambitious plot to take revenge on the Destiny Patrol. Initially, she sends a message to the Fate Patrol by destroying her former colleagues, The Brotherhood of Evil. Red and his minions then bombard the den of the Brain and Mr. Mallah, apparently killing them both. Red teamed up with former Nazi u-boat commander Captain Zahl. Zahl and Rouge fly their submarine to the island. There, Zahl confronts Niles Caulder, blaming him for Zahl's disability; Zahl tries to kill him, but Red wants the Fate Patrol to stay alive so they can continue to suffer endless humiliation. Zahl launches several weapons designed to counter the special abilities of each member of the Doom Patrol. He then tells them that he planted a bomb in a small fishing village in Maine named Codsville, population: 14. He has a second bomb ready to destroy the island of the Fate Patrol. He leaves it up to the Destiny Patrol to decide which bomb it would detonate, confident that they would choose to save their own lives rather than that of fourteen foreigners. Surprisingly, the doom patrol decide to sacrifice itself rather than risk the death of the people of Codsville. Zahl pushes the diver and the island explodes, killing the Fate Patrol. Farewell Second Incarnation Much later, a second team calling itself Doom Patrol was set up by a woman named Celsius, who claimed to be Caulder's widow. This team was originally created to deal with the threat of a rampaging Immortus General, although they can continue on many other missions. Doom Patrol II She hired two unknown heroes Tempest and the new Negative Woman to her cause and they settled in the old headquarters. Robotman, who had survived the explosion and was rebuilt by doc Magnus, agreed to join so after the team proved their sincerity. [5] They reveal that General Immortus is looking for a new formula of immortality developed by Niles Caulder. Immortus attacks, finally disabling them with a powerful harmful gas. Immortus tries to take the serum formula of immortality of the spirit of Celsius. Using his Psycho-Sonde, he learns his story with Niles Caulder. While working for the Red Cross in India, Caulder treated Arani, fell in love, but was unable to take him with him to the United States. Leaving her with a religious sect, she ends up his powers. Eventually, Caulder returned to India. Immortus had, his unknown identity of Caulder, provided him with unlimited funds for the research and development of the serum. Caulder, wary of releasing such a serum on the world until his sound benefactor is revealed, in fact a wedding gift to Arani. The negative woman goes crazy! Superman prevents a New Jersey power plant from overloading and causing a statewide power outage. After saving the workers from the factory, he notices the cause of the overload: a form of black energy in the form of a woman. The shape flies away before Superman can catch it. Adding to the chaos, the being dark energy also appears in Metropolis and begins to wreak havoc. Clark transforms into Superman and begins to chase the entity all over the city. In doing so, he meets the new Patrol of Destiny who explains that energy is in fact their ally, Valentina Vostok. Robotman tells him that Vostok absorbed the negative being that was once part of his late colleague Larry Trainor. Unfortunately, the merger with the entity drove Negative Woman mad. Superman and the Fate Patrol are trying to contain Negative Woman. Valentina Vostok's condition is stabilizing, but she deplores the fact that she must wear specially treated bandages or risk losing control of herself once again. Extended Member Full List Celsius became convinced that her long-lost husband was still alive, and she began actively looking for new heroes to expand their ranks. They won three new members, Lodestone.[6] Karma[7] and Scott Fischer. [8] This incarnation were located in Kansas City where they were met with harsh criticism from the local population. Together they fought the evils of Metallo, Shrapnel, General Immortus and Garguax. Karma would eventually leave the team because he was on the run from the law. [9] They eventually discovered that Niles Caulder was indeed alive, although he denied that he had been married to Celsius. [10] This team completely collapsed during the hostile invasion! Crisis. They teamed up with Aquaman and the Sea Devils for an underwater battle against the Alien Alliance in the Arctic Circle. Celsius died sacrificing himself in an attempt to destroy the Mother Ship Gi'Dishpan. Negative Woman loses her connection to the Negative Spirit when she is blasted by a weapon created by Garguax. After the war, when the treacherous Dominators Jaremy Jaremy on Earth, the complications of his powers and leukemia killed Scott Fischer... and Lodestone fell into a coma. [13] Reformation New Direction Main Article: Doom Patrol. Crawling from the Wreckage Back in action once again, the chief took the opportunity to completely rebuild his team to their former greatness. After spending some time in a psychiatric ward, Robotman is inspired to return by Will Magnus. Larry Trainor regains his previous ties with the negative man, and he becomes Rebis after involuntarily combined with a female doctor named Poole. Crazy Jane becomes their newest member, a patient at the Robotman Hospital stayed with whom has a different superpower with each of its multiple personalities. [14] They have identified themselves as the most qualified in the world to deal with the most bizarre crimes and disasters, things that no one else could. This incarnation of the team would continue to save the universe from a number of bizarre and unusual threats on a regular basis. Their first big challenge was heinrich Hoffman's Scissors Der Struwwelpeter (Stock-Headed Peter). Beings from another world who were slowly infiltrating our own universe and literally attacking us by cutting people off from reality. They came from Orqwith, a philosophical notion... a fictional city that had somehow managed to gain substance and cross into reality. Before the menacing race of thought people could enslave humanity, the Patrol infiltrated their upper city, and Rebis confronted them with a paradox embedded in their system to destroy them. They were confronted with their own non-existence by wondering why there was something instead of nothing, and Orqwith collapsed around them, stripped of his power. It was the first big win for this new team. Dorothy Spinner was invited to join the team, and Joshua Clay agreed to remain purely medical. Rhea Jones, still in a coma, was captured by the evil Red Jack, a serial killer with supernatural powers who thought he was God. Red Jack thought she was his fiancée. Red Jack is kept alive by the pain of a million butterflies pinned to the walls. The team pursued the madman into a mystical realm where he nearly decimated them with his abilities, until Rhea woke up from his sleep long enough to plunge a knife behind his back and kill him. Mr. Morden, their old enemy of the original Brotherhood of Evil, became Mr. Person when scientific experiments drove him mad and imbued him with strange powers. He formed the Brotherhood of Dada by taking the themes of his former team and transforming them into a more absurd, nihilistic group to adapt to his new lifestyle. His new team, Consisting of Sleepwalking, Frenzy, the Fog and the Quix, steals a supernatural painting that says swallowing the one who looks at it, and using it to engulf the city of Paris. [19] This baited the doom patrol by entering the painting where they were quickly defeated by the Brotherhood in their first encounter. However, the Patrol teamed up to stop a large monster imprisoned with them: The Fifth Horseman. The Fifth Horseman fed on ideas and intended to consume all reality and eventually kill himself. He was defeated by Nobody and Crazy Jane, who influenced the spirit of the creature and made him experience pure Dada ... the complete antithesis to all ideas, which converted it into a small wooden hobby horse and made it useless and inert. The Patrol did not know whether or not they should still imprison the Brotherhood after their help... but as the life of the painting collapsed around them, they had to leave and the bad guys went down with the ship. [21] The team also faced threats such as the fake men of N.O.W.H.E.R.E., the real men of N.O.W.H.E.R.E., and threat under the Pentagon. They met allies such as Danny street, a sensitive street that could fit into different places around the world, and Flex-mentalito. The real men out of nowhere were created by the agency using the money clips of the phone avatar under the Pentagon. Eventually, this incarnation of the team was destroyed when the candle maker, summoned by Dorothy Spinner, lost control and killed most of the teammates. The team was also betrayed by Niles Caulder. It is only years later that they will finally experience a real revival during the infinite crisis. Corporate hero The next incarnation of the team saw Robotman lead a group of young heroes working for wealthy industrialist Thayer Jost. In reality, the Robotman at the head of this team was a doppelgänger dreamed of by Dorothy Spinner as she lay in a coma. The current Cliff Steele found her and pulled the plug on her life support machine before her dreams threatened all reality. Pariahs Rita Farr is revived and the original Doom Patrol reform in Florida to combat the threat of vampire Crucifer. Post-Infinite Crisis Oolong Era During a battle with Superboy-Prime, Speedy fires a special Phantom Zone arrow (which she acquired from Arsenal) to Superboy. As the missile strikes, Superboy is pushed into the ghost zone. However, his super-strength is enough for him to break free. This causes the reality to change again, where the doom patrol remember their previous adventures, the death of Elasti-Girl, and the time of Beast Boy in the team. At this time, Superboy-Prime goes further into madness and begins to slaughter heroes: Steve Dayton, still mentally unstable, begins to use the Mento helmet once again; however, he remembers his time as the Lord of Crime. The chief appears to be again manipulating the members of the Doom Patrol: he claims to want to bring them back to normal, so maybe one day [they] will no longer be monsters. After the Destiny Patrol meets the Titans, the Chief tells them that Kid Devil should be a member of the Destiny Patrol instead of the Titans, since his unique appearance and nature will always separate him from others. However, Beast Boy, Elasti-Girl and Mento all stood up to the leader and forced him to resign as head of the Doom Patrol, with Mento taking over the role. While fighting the Titans and the Destiny Patrol, the Brain claimed that he had been the chief's laboratory assistant, that his body had been destroyed in an explosion caused by Caulder, and that he was to be the original Robotman. The doom patrol is now working from a base on Oolong Island. See also Recommended Reading Links and References Copy Edit Needed This article suffers from a lack of quality writing.
